TRIBESMEN BEING BRICADED WITH EXPERIENCED FIGHTERS

PARIS, May 21.—Abel-El-Krim's imposing force of Oureghin tribesmen who are brigaded with experienced fighters from the Rif region, are being concentrated by experts in military strategy. This is the opinion of the observers here.

The latest developments lead them to think that the next effort of the rebels will be to cut the railroad from Oujda to Fez, thus making it impossible for the French to bring in reinforcements by that route from Algeria.

The French now have fifty thousand picked troops on the front to meet the tribesmen. This force, however, is handicapped by the fact that it cannot take an earnest offensive owing to diplomatic and political reasons, and must remain on the offensive and give the Rifians, guided by skillful leaders, the advantage of being able to strike at a point where the French troops are thin.

The posts in the Bilahne region were again surrounded today, which made it necessary for the French to do over again the work of relieving them accomplished several days ago. Hardly had the Bilahne posts been relieved a second time when the posts in the Taamnat region were again surrounded, and the French were again obliged to do over again the work of relieving them.

HEARING OF APPEAL ENDS; COURT RESERVES JUDGMENT

TORONTO, May 21.—(By Canadian Press).—Hearing of appeals by the five directors of the Home bank who were convicted by Judge Caswell was concluded by the First Divisional court this afternoon when judgment was reserved by the five judges in the case of S. Casey Wood, K.C. There was no indication of the date when judgment might be expected, but the argument has been lengthy, and it may be some weeks before they are handed down.

The five directors were convicted and sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment on charges of wilfully or negligently signing or concurring in false or deceptive bank reports. "There is not a bank director in Canada," declared N. W. Russell, K.C., in closing the case for Mr. Wood, "who could not be prosecuted and convicted if the trial judge is correct in the law. I do not see how one could escape. No other judge ever applied such law to bank directors." Mr. Russell declared that controversy involved an act of the bank, something which had to be proven, and the crown had failed to prove it in the Wood case.

D. L. McCarthy, K.C., concluding for the crown his argument against granting the appeal, said the one object upon which the minds of all the directors had been "to keep the bank going." A tremendous effort was made at the end of each year to make a statement which would show the directors of the bank in a favorable light, and to include the large loans in liquid assets with the one idea of depositing in a good report.
